Snowmotion is stone and glass, snow and water. Two elements so different, yet with so much in common. The Dolomites peaks have just been covered by the first snowfall of the season, while the lake at their feet is still untouched. The reflection still intact in a temporary moment of stillness, before the freezing wind blows down from the mountains over the water.

The natural veins and streaks of Liberty marble from Carrara, Italy, are meticulously carved with natural shapes and pair beautifully with the pure clarity of the mirror, forming a contrasting, yet harmonious combination.
